

Integrated Method – Progressive-Regressive Method Applied Across Disciplines

By Shomit Sirohi

Introduction

A Cross-Section based on Militant Historiography and comparisons based on assertions or biases
which can be debated

based on wage-class relations.

I. Integrated Method
then has points of integration

Common Existentialism
and Marxism – first the daily life, buses, taxis,
and offices, perhaps universities and
companies and capitals
and labour processes
and labour politics.

II. Points of Integration

The bus integrates in several ways – historical culture, economic integrity, sociological process of say micro-sociology at all times asserted or in fact averages in social terms, which is a social average based on wage or status, and then can be asserted by observations – and

perhaps political science – the process of class-processes and social philosophy to guide it like how the daily life of a
proletarian class
member then expresses his observed life again.

III. Integrated in Complex Unity with a Bias for Debates
on points but also
on Zurich Style
points

The point is its economic – the Zurich point is it's a “process” which is Whitehead which means to explain its process more and more.

IV. Last Point of Integrated Method – Bepop

In fact then bepob through each point in life – a incident happens that a bourgeois man

once became radical
and attacked a bus
ticket collector, from another point in Bepop
the working class was then in a general strike,
point they strike against the managers for in fact the same process in proletarian lives.

In sociological fact – the bus is a very important

proletarian and women
– it is also the taxi for bourgeois women it is then a micro-sociology
of public transportation
– which is an essential
service to the people.

By going through this is how in Madrid – the sociology reveals a process – how people
take the bus for simple daily life price living which means how the people manage high

costs and is very popular along with the metro – sociology compares in a average statistic of low wage conduct.

III. Progressive-
Regressive Method
applied – horizontal and vertical cross-section

In horizontal formats – it is in fact bus labouring conditions for all in vertical cross

section – World Bank, IMF and EU in Madrid
are attacking the poor
by in fact a micro-sociology of developing prudent culture and
cost of living crisis.
